Transfusions Might Help.
Flying and Influenza.
Bonus for Singed Lambs?
What Did Red Moran Think?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

GREAT BRITAIN was cheered by hope that the king might recover. It was faint hope, for doctors, after operating, reported indications of continued blood infection.

IN CASES of blood stream infection American surgeons resort to blood transfusion, with remarkable success. The king exhausted by long illness, the fighting strength of his blood low, might find resisting power in new blood from a strong man.

Transfusions of half a pint two or three days apart have worked wonders in cases of toxemia. Once used only as a last resort, transfusion is now in constant use here.

THE country is indebted to President Coolidge for deep interest shown in aviation and recommendations for air-plane expenditures in his message, and his part in the celebration of the Wright brothers' flying anniversary.

THURSDAY famous fliers, 11th government officials of 49 nations, discussed in Washington national problems that will arise as air transportation across continents and oceans develops.

National co-operation is necessary that the air may be free to all, as the ocean is free.

IN ANOTHER Washington building experts discuss the possibility of checking influenza, alarming in various places, although fortunately not as bad as 1920. Deaths in 75 cities total 189 for the week ending December 8.

Kansas leads in the number of cases reported, 15,596, but it is believed that only one-fifth of all cases are reported.

WHAT causes influenza nobody knows. It is suggested by serious men that "interstellar dust clouds" may be responsible. Hitherto influenza waves have swept from east to west. This time the disease is traveling from west to east.

Not content with its own destruction, influenza, weakening the system, prepares it for encephalitis lethargica, a new "sleeping sickness," almost as common as infantile paralysis.

Government that pays attention to diseases of pigs and plants might well attack human influenza.

WORKERS in Wall Street will receive large cash bonuses this year, running from 10 per cent to 100 per cent of their annual wages, and totaling tens of millions. The men have worked hard and bonuses will be welcomed.

SOMETHING in the way of a bonus would also be welcome by little lambs that recently have had their wool shorn. Seven hundred and fifty of them, whose accounts are said to have been closed out in one brokerage house, would appreciate a bonus. "Money" dropped to 6 per cent yesterday. That is a sort of bonus.

WHAT do you suppose "Red" Moran thought about Thursday night, listening to music in his death cell while other Sing Sing prisoners were enjoying "the annual convict frolic"? Sixty convicts presented the play, "No, No, Nanette," with music by a jazz band.

JURORS AWAIT E. E. GARSIDE CASE

DEFENSE ASKS ACQUITTAL OF MOTORIST IN FATAL CRASH

E. Palestine Mail Carrier Charged With Manslaughter.

DENIES SPEEDING

Indicted for Death of F. W. Ferguson, New Waterford.

Edward C. Garside, 40, East Palestine mail carrier and automobile dealer, indicted for manslaughter in the death of F. W. Ferguson, 58, New Waterford storekeeper, in an automobile crash on the Columbiana-New Waterford road, May 26, on trial in common pleas court, Lisbon, probably will learn his fate before night.

Brookes Closes Argument.

Indications at noon were the case would reach the jury at 3 o'clock. Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes began his closing argument shortly after 1 o'clock and this was expected to require an hour. The judge's charge to the jury will follow. R. H. Hahn, Youngstown, chief defense counsel, asked an acquittal verdict in addressing the jury this morning. He charged that the death of Ferguson was "accidental" and denied that Garside was speeding when his automobile collided with the sedan driven by Ferguson as the latter's car emerged from a driveway at the Frank Beck home near New Waterford.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Banknecht delivered the opening argument for the state when court resumed this morning, urging conviction.

Garside Testifies. The defense rested yesterday afternoon after Garside took the stand. He testified that his automobile was traveling at a speed of 23 miles an hour when the Ferguson car appeared in the highway directly in front of him. The Ferguson automobile was overturned in a ditch and took fire. Ferguson, pinned under the wheel of the car, was fatally burned.

Garside's wife and two other passengers in his car corroborated his statements regarding the speed of the automobile at the time of the crash. Testimony was also offered in Garside's behalf by two other motorists who reached the scene a few minutes after the wreck.

NO FLU HERE, SAYS MISKALL

Health Commissioner, However, Says Many Have Colds.

Despite epidemics in other cities of Ohio, there is no influenza in East Liverpool, Dr. Edward Miskall, city health commissioner, said today. "Numerous cases of la grippe and heavy colds have been reported here but none of these has been diagnosed as flu," the health department head declared. The "flu," Dr. Miskall claims, continues for several days and generally leaves the patient in a weakened condition.

Colds are having a serious effect on the local schools. More children were absent from their classes yesterday than on any day since the opening of the fall term. Superintendent C. S. McVay declared. Inquiry at the homes of the absentees showed most of the children to be suffering from colds. Several members of the teaching corps are also ill.

The weather during the last few days is blamed by Dr. Miskall for the sickness here.

The stepson, Walter Ferguson, 29, escaped from the older man's attack when he jumped from a second story window, he said.

BILLY SUNDAY ILL, BUT WILL CLOSE REVIVAL HERETOMORROW

Evangelist Fights Flu as Campaign Nears End.

IN BED FRIDAY

Four Services on Tabernacle Schedule for Last Day.

Although fighting a cold and a threatened attack of influenza, Evangelist Billy Sunday, too ill to take his place in the pulpit yesterday afternoon and last night, will close his second six-week revival in East Liverpool within 16 years with four services in the Second and Washington streets' tabernacle tomorrow.

The 65-year-old revival chieftain, who also expects to preach this afternoon, although members of his party at noon were advising against his plan, will preach to everybody at 10:30 tomorrow morning, to men only at 1:30 in the afternoon, again for everybody at 3 o'clock and close the campaign with a general service at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

Record-breaking crowds are expected at the four services. Zellers and Schreiber Speak. Assembled to hear the veteran evangelist last night was one of the largest crowds of the revival.

The preliminary exercises having been about concluded, Homer Roddeheaver, filling capably the role of understudy, finally took the audience into his confidence and asked whether they felt Mr. Sunday should be asked to remain in his quarters at the Travelers' hotel rather than risk his health by appearing on the platform. Hands everywhere went high in the air voting that the evangelist remain where he was under the circumstances. The action was so spontaneous that the musical director simply told Alfred Peterson, the advance man of the party, to carry the information to Mr. Sunday. This he did.

Then Roddeheaver went on with the preliminary exercises and later called Charles "Dutch" Zellers, of Dayton, district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Ohio to substitute for him. In abeyance was V. A. Schreiber, of Canton, another Anti-Saloon league official. "And if necessary I shall preach myself," was the laconic affirmation of Roddeheaver.

Two Services Today.

The rain was pouring in torrents at the time of the afternoon meeting. It was out of the question for Mr. Sunday to attempt negotiating the distance. And besides he had planned to rest until the evening service. He did and the faithful Roddeheaver, aided by Charles Zellers turned the gathering.

CANTON POLICE JAIL HELDMAN AS AFTERMATH OF WIFE DEATH

Coroner McQuate Acts in Sequel to Fearn Murder.

WILL QUIZ MAN

Waco Coal Dealer's Killer Shot Enroute to Surrender.

CANTON, O., Dec. 15.—Wilbur O. Heldman, 27-year-old husband of Margaret Heldman, the alleged "phantom gun woman" who was shot and killed as she was enroute to surrender herself for the murder of Vernard Fearn, was arrested shortly before noon today and placed in the county jail.

Coroner to Question Man. Coroner T. C. McQuate, upon whose order Heldman was arrested, is to question him this afternoon, it is said.

CANTON, O., Dec. 15.—The arrest of Wilbur O. Heldman, 27-year-old husband of Margaret Heldman, the "phantom gun woman" who was shot and killed as she was enroute to surrender herself for the murder of Vernard Fearn, was asked by Coroner T. C. McQuate today.

Says Woman Killed Self

Mrs. Heldman was shot as she and her husband were driving to the sheriff's office Thursday night. Heldman says she shot herself and Coroner McQuate has already confirmed this by pronouncing the death a suicide. He said today, however, that there appeared to be certain elements in Heldman's story and asked his men to keep a close watch on her.

Relatives of the dead girl, including her sister, Mrs. Roy Pierce, of Canton; a brother, Joseph Horner, of Bobs, Pa., and her father, Matthew Horner, of Washington, D. C., have declared that her husband frequently mistreated and abused her.

Used Husband's Pistol

Sheriff Gibson says he has learned that on several occasions Heldman threatened her with a pistol. It was Heldman's pistol with which she killed Vernard Fearn at the door of his home in the village of Waco, near here, on the night of Dec. 6. She was killed with the same pistol just a week later as her husband was taking her to the sheriff's office after she had confessed to him.

In continuing his investigation, Sheriff Gibson expects to learn whether Heldman's alleged threats influenced Mrs. Heldman's murder of Fearn or whether a factor in her supposed suicide.

A "suicide letter" which Mrs. Heldman is believed to have written several days before her death and then decided to destroy, is apparently authentic, Sheriff Gibson said, despite the fact that Joseph Horner, the brother, contends that it is not his sister's handwriting.

The letter states that Fearn at one time attacked Mrs. Heldman and (Continued on page 8, column 5)

BURGLAR LOOTS SINCLAIR HOME

Flees With $50 as Woman Fires at Him.

A burglar who forced his way into the home of Mrs. Sinclair, Hague street, this morning, was fleeing with $50 when the woman fired at him.

In his haste to make his getaway the burglar dropped two suits of clothes, an overcoat, three shirts, a lumberman's jacket containing $18 and a child's bank containing a few dollars in pennies. A coat, believed to have been worn by the suspect, was also found in the house.

Sinclair, who is employed as a kilnman at the Hall China plant, left the house for work at 4 o'clock. An hour later Mrs. Sinclair, who with her 11-year old daughter, Virginia, occupies an adjoining room, was awakened by a noise in her husband's room.

She obtained a revolver, atop the bureau and as the burglar passed her bedroom door a few minutes later she fired. The bullet missed the man and lodged in the wall. The robber dashed down the stairway and out of the door of the sun-parlor.

Mrs. Sinclair called police headquarters and Fireman Cooper, on duty at the city hall, and Patrolman Haley made an investigation. No trace of the suspect could be found but a paper found in his coat which he abandoned in his effort to escape, leads police to believe that he is a mill worker. There was no name on the paper.

Entrance to the house is believed to have been made through a window in the rear.

CHILD'S COUGH WAS GONE BEFORE DOCTOR ARRIVED

Almost Instant Relief Came When He Phoned Worried Mother
What to Do

Gladd that she took the advice of her doctor, Mrs. C. P. Murphy, like vast numbers of mothers in East Liverpool and vicinity, realizes how quickly a child's cold can now be ended by home use of a pleasant hospital method and how much needless misery and risk is caused by putting off the right treatment.

For a day or so her little daughter, Louise, had shown signs of a cold. She didn't pay much attention to it at first, thinking that the cold would soon go away. But that night the child kept her awake coughing and she became alarmed when the thermometer showed temperature.

Then she called the doctor. He advised Mrs. Murphy to immediately give the child Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a quick remedy that has proved to be of unusual value in hospital treatment of children's colds. In just a little while she had stopped coughing and was sleeping quietly. When the doctor called next day her fever had disappeared, congestion was clearing up and in another day or so all trace of the cold was gone.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

Ayer's Pectoral can be had at the nearest drug store. Even sick children love the pleasant taste—and doctors advise it because it is as harmless as the purest food—made of wild cherry, lemon hydrate and other ingredients which cold cures and more than a million mothers have found to be the quickest and most effective to stop a cough and end the cold.

Ohio Must Guard Against Flu

Local People Urged to Prevent
Epidemic Spreading as it Did

Lives Were Lost in This Country Alone.

Don't Take Chances With Colds.

While there is no cause for alarm at this time, health authorities urge extra precaution—especially now, when grippiness, pneumonia and influenza are so prevalent.

Colds Lead to "Flu"
Warning is given particularly against neglecting colds, which lower one's physical resistance and thus make the body easy prey for influenza, grip and pneumonia. Even a little cold, authorities say, is dangerous unless checked at once.

The only safe plan is to check every cold at the start by a vigorous application of Vicks VapoRub, rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime.

Acts 2 Ways at Once.
For hours after Vicks is applied, its ingredients, time-tested remedies, such as camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme, and turpentine, are released as vapors by the body heat, and inhaled direct to the infected passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and pain.

Avoids "Dosing" Children.
Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 21 million jars are used yearly.

Precautions Against Flu

Although thousands of cases have been reported in Ohio, East Liverpool so far has escaped the outbreak of influenza, which, in a mild form, is sweeping across the country.

According to Dr. Edward Miskall, health commissioner, no cases have been reported to him by East Liverpool physicians. He says, however, that many persons are suffering from colds and grip. School officials, too, report no signs of flu among pupils, although many children have been absent from classes this week because of illness.

As the United States Public Health service points out, there is no reason for alarm, for the epidemic, if it can be termed such, is not the serious type that was experienced in 1918. However, it is well that precautions should be taken.

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming suggests:

- 1—Avoid needless contact with crowds. Walk to and from work.
- 2—Get as much open air and sunshine as possible.
- 3—Sleep with windows open.
- 4—Avoid coughing, sneezing and sickly people.
- 5—Wash the hands before eating and do not put the fingers in nose or mouth.
- 6—Avoid shaking hands.
- 7—Do not use napkins, towels or eating utensils which have been used by other persons, unless they are washed or sterilized.
- 8—Avoid the common drinking cup.
- 9—Keep up a good condition of general health. Use plenty of clean water inside and outside. Eat clean, wholesome food, and sleep at least seven hours a day.
- 10—Keep away from persons who are suffering with bad colds.
- 11—Avoid dusty and overheated rooms.
- 12—In case of contracting influenza, go to bed at once.

The above are common sense rules to safeguard the health. And should be practiced at all times.

Largest Locomotive

Within the next 30 days, the largest locomotive ever constructed, an engine capable of pulling a train two miles long over a level track, will be delivered to the Northern Pacific railroad for trial on mountain grades. If it stands the tests in the manner anticipated, it and others like it will be substituted for the engines now in use. The expectation is that it alone will handle trains which now require two engines pulling and one pushing to climb the grades.

The engine and tender, which have a combined length of 175 feet—about half the length of the average city block—weigh 1,000,000 pounds. The engine, which is of 6,000 horsepower, is so high that its smokestack is almost invisible, and its bell is mounted on its pilot. So massive are its mechanism that not only is the reverse gear operated by steam, as is customary in large locomotives, but the throttle for regulating the flow of steam to the cylinders also is moved by steam. Two pairs of cylinders, each of which is connected to eight wheels, drive the monster, and it is equipped with auxiliary cylinders for starting.

The firebox is said to be almost the size of a small garage. It is so mammoth that, in addition to the door at the rear, there is an additional fire door on either side, which is reached by a running board. The engine, which is stoked automatically, will consume 20 tons of coal an hour—enough fuel to heat an ordinary home two winters—and will evaporate every hour 14,400 gallons of water.

It is not at all hard to understand that such locomotives as this will permit of the dispensing with two out of three engine crews on mountain divisions, but will there be any great saving in an engine of its enormous coal and water consumption?

The North Pacific people no doubt have the answer to all these problems which the most powerful of all steam locomotives offers.

Ending Unemployment

Prosperity is what we are all looking for. There are those, of course, who argue that too much of it is making us a soft nation and one headed toward the rocks. Some scareheads insist even that the breakers are hard ahead and that as a nation we shall soon have to join the has-beens, as did ancient Babylon, Rome and Greece. The babblings of these prophets, however, as has always been the case, will not stay our desire to get on as fast as we can.

Herbert Hoover's plan of assuring prosperity by amassing a large fund in the several states for construction work and the concentration of major developments in periods of depression must appeal to the reason of all.

Hoover's proposal to outlaw depression was made public through Governor Brewster of Maine at the recent annual governors' conference.

Said Governor Brewster: "With an annual expenditure of $7,000,000,000 upon construction, America is in a position to stabilize prosperity to a most remarkable extent. Public authority spends more than $1,500,000,000. With this we are here primarily concerned. Private business will soon follow such practical demonstration as government may make since the greatest commercial interests of the country have the most vital stake."

Of course, we understand that Mr. Hoover has no thought to set up a gigantic national fund, but relies upon the hope that the legislatures of the several states will fall in line with the suggestion. It is assumed naturally that construction under government contract will be concentrated and funds used in the same way.

The reasoning in the mind of Hoover is expressed by Governor Brewster in these words:

"Picture the approach of an economic crisis with unemployment threatening on every hand. The release of $3,000,000,000 to the contractor, to the laborer, to the material men, to the factory, to the factory employees, to the merchants, and to the farmer. It goes like the house that Jack built and unemployment is at an end."

Now that the governors have the suggestion, it is to be hoped that they carry it back to their legislative bodies and urge that it be acted upon and given a trial.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15.—With all of the reputedly fabulous expenditure of Russian gold spent to disseminate Red propaganda throughout the world, the Soviets made but few indentations on established orders in other countries. Indeed, they have been required to bend every energy to propagandizing their own people. The principal vehicle employed has been the stage. The censorship on the written word has been and remains severe. Newspapers may print nothing which does not conform to bolshevik ideas and even books are not permitted to be published if they criticize the ruling regime.

The theater was seized upon as the best method of carrying propaganda to the people because a theatrical performance can not very well be produced in secret. Books and pamphlets containing counter-revolutionary ideas can be circulated secretly or, as we would say in the United States, bootlegged, and some of that sort of activity does go on.

The Russian has a curious admixture of childlike and He likes spectacles. In the old days the Russian theater was famous. The Imperial Russian ballet was the most famous in the world. So the stage could be depended upon as a sure and safe medium of conveying to the people what the Soviet leaders wanted them to learn.

When the revolution occurred in 1917 the Russian theaters, like every other activity, were nationalized. They came directly under the thumb of the commissars. No performance could be given which pictured the old favorably. With the nation in turmoil and the people in bewilderment it was natural that the theaters languished. The Moscow Art theater which had been established under the Czar in 1898, had nothing to offer which fitted the new state of Russia society, save a few classics which were innocuous.

It was not until 1925 that the Moscow Art theater began to catch up to the spirit of the times. It attempted what the directors regarded as an ultra-modern bolshevik play, "The Days of the Turbans." But as a number of Czarist officers of the old regime were represented in the production there was considerable objection on the ground that nothing should be presented which might remind the people of the old days. But those in charge of the theater were learning and finally put on "The Armored Train."

But the interesting thing is that this play was made an education and propaganda vehicle. It was presented to the audiences of peasants and workers as a symbolic drama. The armored train symbolizes modern machinery. The taking of the train by the Red Army symbolizes the wresting of the factories from capitalists by the people, the workers. With machinery in their own hands they work out their salvation.

Finding that such thrillers met with an eager reception from the workers, the Soviet officials encouraged that sort of thing but the rule was that the propaganda must always be there. Having taken over everything and recognizing no former right of any kind, it was a matter of course that old works of theatrical art should undergo the same sort of operation. Gogol, long before the revolution, had written a play which satirized local officials, somewhat comparable to American justices of the peace. The play itself was good but there was about it too much of the atmosphere of the old times. So the words of the master, Gogol, were rewritten where necessary and the characters twisted around so that the satire became a bitter attack on the capitalist and Czarist system. So far, the Russian theater has not rewritten and adapted the plays of Shakespeare but it would come as no surprise if that were done.

The Moscow Art theater has fostered, with official sanction, several subsidiary theaters, called studio theaters, where young actors are given a chance to perform. These are quite popular. Some of the performances are given in rustic settings. In addition to the stress laid on mechanics, the Russian theater also is emphasizing the importance of sport and physical exercise in order to build perfect men.

Everything possible is done to make the Russians gladly accept the new era of things and look backward on the old regime with horror. An important play produced in 1925 was called "Teache Babus." The theme was constructed on the difficulties of an intellectual of the college professor type who was earnestly and honestly striving to find the right course of action. He was unable to make up his mind as to whether he should take up the revolutionary program of the bolsheviks or remain in the more ordered ranks of the Czarist civilization. He comes to grief because of his failure to join the Reds. The lesson is that moderation and carefully weighed judgment are disastrous and that to win, the people must strike boldly out and take the reins.

To disseminate the new ideas further theaters have been established which present plays in pure Hebrew and others in which the speeches are made in Yiddish, the modern Jewish dialectic tongue.

European and American critics who have witnessed these plays say that they are presented in masterly fashion with highly effective stage settings and remarkably forceful acting. Some of the better known companies have gone on European tours. In fact "The Dybbuk," a Jewish play, was brought to New York where it was successfully presented. But, observers declare, foreign experience is not good for the Russian players. When they return they lack much of their original, native, and characteristic Russian fire. Jazz has crept into their music and there has been a general deterioration.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Adroit ladies with a penchant for tapping the paying lodes in the gold fields of Broadway are about the best dressed in the town. Downiness is as much of a complete blight to the artful industry as a swell address is a boon.

The engaging maidens who take this bureau of our gentry for the proverbial "cleaning" may have only a simple smile and the intellectual equipment of a feeble minded goat but their wardrobes reflect the seasonal vagaries of the rue de la Paix. They are clothed in the best.

The most celebrated Lorelei came to New York with only a shiny blue serge and a tam and was soon lost in the shuffle dealing 'em off the arm in a Tenth avenue luncheon. Then she saw the Great Light and tapped a sympathetic old lolo for a dressy outfit and quit the beauty.

This was her start and in six years she has worked her way up to duplex apartments, diamond bracelets and digress like that. To a struggling girl friend she once confided the secret of her triumph as: "Eighty per cent clothes and 20 per cent tears."

Clothes may not make the lady but they do make the gals attractive to those lonely philanderers so "misonderstood at home." And that is important to those who spin their seductive webs. Character and family tradition have no part in Broadway's love making. It is a racket.

A line from a play of Broadway manners this season ran: "You can be dumb, derie, but you gotta have a front." There is a true story of a mouse-like and plainly dressed stenographer who received a windfall in the shape of a $10,000 legacy. She decided to gamble.

She spent $7,000 for a collection of clothes, bobbed her hair and moved into a sumptuous suite in one of the fashionable hotels, gracing the smart dining room nightly. In six weeks she became the bride of an aging high roller. And while he has escaped the other cone he has a hacking cough.

Supplementing these observations on clothes value, there is an expert in town who specializes in teaching sartorial smartness, appealing chiefly to young girls who have come to New York to make their way. In one of

Other Editors Say

Money Isn't Much.

Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem Steel millionaire: "Money isn't much. Of course, we want enough to pay our bills as we go along, but a whole lot of money is of no use. It is only a symbol of success."

Charles, a whole lot of money isn't as a rule, a symbol of success. The fellow with a whole lot of money who cannot or does not find a good, practical use for it isn't a success, save as a money maker, like the fellow who wins a whole lot of money on horse races, or a faro, for instance.

A whole lot of money is always of great potential use. A whole lot of stupidity, is frequently shown in applying the potentiality of it. Making a whole lot of money simply for the sake of having a whole lot of money isn't success, any way you look at it, save from the viewpoint of the gambler or the miser.—Helena (Mont.) Independent.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy.

Do you become uneasy in the presence of those who are studying you? You wonder what they are trying to learn about you?

Perhaps this discomfort is greatest when you are in the presence of those who make a living by writing.

You are afraid that you may give impressions that can be used by the professional writer.

To avoid giving the writer suggestions, how do you act?

Do you try to "high-hat" writers or do you ignore them?

When you try such tactics you are posing, and that is discernible.

The writer who uses people as his subject is usually a natural born character-writer—a reader of human nature.

To try to mask your peculiarities only amuses him or her.

To try to deceive or to use superior airs only singles you out for notice and finally for criticism.

It attracts the attention of "a writing person" and fairly throws at his head the very thing you wish to keep from notice.

Be natural and you won't present any material for a story.

If you do present suggestions, they are more likely to be favorable.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Not long ago I found myself at the same dinner table with a mother and two daughters. The young women had dazzling white teeth. I think I never saw more perfect teeth.

I could not help glancing at the mother's teeth. She had them all. They were the same shape as her daughters, but gave evidence of much dental work.

The mother belonged to a generation that learned late in life how important a member of society the dentist is. Of course, too, dentistry was very crude in her childhood.

Thank goodness, we have learned that the teeth can be preserved. By proper care they will last us through-out life.

In the public schools of the larger communities there are school doctors and school nurses. They are watching the children. Among other good things they insist upon their demand that the youngsters shall care for the teeth. The "tooth-brush drills" are common. The teachers take pride in the physical welfare of the pupils and count this of great importance.

What the teeth are to be depends on the care given the baby from the day of its birth. The quality of milk, and its abundance, will determine the quantity of lime and phosphorus without which there can be no dependable bones and teeth.

"Lime starvation" is responsible for many of the dental defects from which we suffer. Without lime there cannot be good teeth. The evil of excessive candy eating is not the direct effect of the sugar upon the body. It comes from the fact that the candy eating satisfies the appetite and keeps the child from taking milk and other mineral carrying foods.

It is not the young child alone who gets bad effects from lime starvation. Big boys and girls, young men and women, old men and women—all must have ceaseless supplies of minerals or else trouble is on the way. Not only bad teeth, but also other serious ailments, can be traced to the neglect of proper foods.

No one should neglect regular trips to the dentist. The earlier they start and the more frequent they are the less pain or discomfort will be the result. It is easy and painless to prevent dental defects. The way to have beautiful teeth is to keep them in their original state.

Unfortunately it is very rare indeed for a person in middle life to have teeth without fillings, or their need. Without discussing the reasons why, we must face the fact that teeth will decay. If attention is given immediately, a tiny filling will be enough. If you neglect a cavity for months and months, it increases in size. The tooth is doomed unless the dentist is called.

Nobody can be well if the teeth and gums are diseased. The poisons will undermine the health.

In addition, if the teeth are decayed and sore, there will be neglect of proper chewing of the food. This will result in undernourishment and impaired health.

Make your dentist your friend. Consult him regularly—several times a year.

GANGLAND STORY ON CERAMIC BILL

Gangland has a peculiar code of what it pleases to call honor. Taking a man for a ride, shooting him down without giving him a chance to defend himself, shooting him in the back, pumping him full of lead from a machine gun is quite all right and according to the code of the gangster, but a "squealer" is something the gang never tolerates.

"Romance of the Underworld," which comes to the Ceramic theater, Monday, for a three-day run, brings out that point. In it a man who "squeals" pays the penalty at a fortunate time for the heroine.

The central figure of the story is a girl, "Judith Andrews," portrayed by Mary Astor, whom fate had buffeted about with such effect that her only means of livelihood was as an entertainer in a notorious New York speakeasy.

"Derby Dan," played by Ben Bard, is the type of man who preys on women, takes their earnings from them, picks a pocket or two when the occasion arises and stops not at blackmail when that serves his purpose.

"Derby Dan" dominates the girl. The only touch of human kindness she experiences is when Detective Lieutenant Ed Burke, played by Robert Elliott, senses that the girl is out of her element and helps her.

The speakeasy is raided just as a big butter and egg man has been rolled for his wallet and his jewelry.

"Derby Dan," the dip in this instance, fearing the swag will be found on him while the raid is on, parks it in the pocket of "Champagne Joe," the proprietor of the speakeasy. There it is found and "Joe" takes a long vacation "up the river."

While he is away Judith, staked to a ten dollar bill by the detective, finds a more respectable job, but "Derby Dan" is ever in her way. He is not keen over the thought of losing one of his meat tickets. In time Judith marries her employer, played by John Bolos.

"Derby Dan" finishes a stretch, comes out of prison and learns Lincoln Way Club Entertained.

Fifty attended the meeting of the Lincoln Way club held last night at Camp Rest, Glenmoor, with Mrs. John Elfinger as hostess. Dancing was the diversion. The Golden Star orchestra was in charge of the music. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Earl Mylar and Blanchard McBride.

The next meeting will be held December 28 with Mrs. Kathryn Hall as hostess.

Prof. Manley Sails for Paris. Prof. Louis K. Manley, formerly of East Liverpool, a member of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh, accompanied by Mrs. Manley and their children, left New York City at midnight last night on the Bergenaria for Paris, where they will spend the winter. This is the steamship on which Prince George is sailing to the bedside of his father, King George, of England.

Woodmen's Auxiliary Session Monday. Ladies Auxiliary No. 196, of the Woodmen of the World, will meet Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Pottery hall, West Sixth street.

Dance Monday Night, Rex Hall, Weirton.

Diamond Variety Store Real Toy Headquarters; Visit Here Will Help Jolly Old St. Nick

Take the Youngsters and Inspect Toyland Stock at Local Shop And You'd Better
Hurry—It's Getting Late.

CHRISTMAS will be here in a very few days and inasmuch as Christmas enjoyment is centered largely around the youngsters, it behooves us to get around to these toy shops and make suitable arrangements with Santa Claus for P. D. Q. delivery, via chimney, a week from next Monday night.

The Diamond Variety store (in the Diamond as the name suggests) is a real toy emporium this year. To get the full enjoyment from a visit here, one must, of course, take the little tots along. The more imagination the child possesses, the better.

A little girl, who started the day pleasantly by inventing a game of her own—of counting all the blue velvet coats she saw—was a great help. She had one objective—a doll—the price to be within a dollar. She wanted a small doll, anyway, she said, so she could make clothes for it.

Do Your Shopping Today.

After stopping to admire some very beautiful little music boxes that tinkled little bell-like tones, and a glass case with a village, and a whole railroad system in it, switches, a station, street lights, a stop and go sign and a train, of course, it was decided to go and visit the dolls immediately.

There were just ever so many dolls to choose from, even if one's purchase was limited to one precious dollar. They ranged in size from a tiny person who could hide under a stamp—at least under a Special Delivery stamp, all dressed, too, in a crocheted costume, to a large fat baby doll with a mild blank expression, all of twelve inches high—which was marked "Special, 95 cents."

Take Your Choice in Dolls

There were just a few dressed dolls—most of them were waiting for a small, loving mother to clothe them. How very difficult to choose! There were ever so many sizes of small, jointed dolls, some with eyes that shut and opened, real hair and little painted shoes and stockings.

Here again a careful selection must be made—dark hair or light—blue eyes or brown—four little costumes to choose from! Having chosen a sweet little brown-eyed girlie with a white hat and a red dress, and white shoes and stockings, then, that important matter being settled, one should visit the other dolls at one's leisure.

Dolls from the Funnies

There were the cartoon dolls, too—characters from the funnies, made of stamped, pebbled cloth, that should last for some time, even with the most energetic handling.

At another place, one could purchase a complete outfit for washing little clothes. There was a tub on a little table, a real-for-sure-enough wringer, a clothes basket, a drying stand, and of course, an ironing board and tiny iron would follow.

Come In All Colors

There are only a few that one might call static toys. It is a demand of childhood with all its store of energy, that a toy do something. For the tiny folks—and even they enjoy rattles—there are soft toys to cuddle. Pale pink or blue plush animals of all sizes are waiting in the shop for them. Velvet creatures come in all colors—lavender pups, a fat blue pig and a charming kitten in tan, all ready to spring on a mouse.

But as soon as she or he starts to toddle about, the toy must be capable of more action, to hold the little one's attention. Then come the push toys, with a slender rod attached, so the toy may march ahead. A little boy would like a black bear who struck a drum and clashed cymbals as he was pushed ahead. There are other wooden toys that are to be pulled on a string, instead of being pushed ahead. These are varied from cartoon creatures to a fat duck that strikes her head into a ban, making a lovely rattle-bang every time she moves.

Things for Older Children

For the older children there are activities of many kinds suggested by the playthings. A boy can be an archer, one day after Christmas, and use his bow and arrows. Another day he can run a bus, there may be a hand-some coal truck to engage his attention. These gifts are all constructive. He can be an engineer and construct buildings. He may even find an elaborate concrete mixer below the Christmas tree, ready for his industrious hands.

Here Are Musical Toys

If a young person is inclined to music, Dad and Mother will find all sizes of pianos at the toy shop for this person's use. There are cunning small ones, the size of a packing box, that will really play. Then there is one still larger that is a really truly piano and has a complete keyboard and all. It stands about three and one-half feet high. This would be admirable as a gift to the child who cares for music.

Don't forget a visit to the Diamond Variety Toy shop.

FLU REACHES EPIDEMIC IN NORTHERN OHIO

Disease Spreading
Southward Across
State.

TOLEDO IS HIT
Akron and Other Cities
Report Many are Ill.

Influenza in mild form has reached epidemic proportions in the northern sections of Ohio today. This statement was made at Columbus today by Dr. C. P. Robbins, chief of the communicable disease division of the state department of health.

Influenza in mild form in near epidemic proportions is spreading southward across the breadth of the state. This statement is made by the International News Service by virtue of reports received from its state-wide organization. International News Service also estimates that there are approximately 75,000 Ohioans suffering from the flu in its milder forms. In this estimate Dr. Robbins concurs.

From Toledo and Lucas county came the first reports of influenza with an attack among the cast of an amateur musical show. Today more than 10,000 school children are out of classes. Industrial plants, including the Willys-Knight automobile shops, report from their employment offices that upwards of 15,000 workers, men and women, are carded on the "sick roll."

Many Cases in Youngstown. Akron was next reported in the grip of influenza. Approximately 4,000 school children are flu victims. This number added to the total of those reported ill in the rubber plants, various business concerns and the police department, brings the estimated flu sufferers to 15,000.

From these two highly infected points the influenza has spread completely across the state and is now taking a southern course, large numbers of cases being reported as far south as Union county.

Dr. Robbins received word today from Youngstown that between one and two per cent of the entire population was ill with the flu, which at a low estimate would be 15,000 and 20,000 cases. Bucyrus today is in the grip of a serious epidemic of hard colds and several cases of influenza.

Several Schools Closed. In the schools 10 per cent of the students are reported ill. The report circulated this morning through an other press association that the schools of Bucyrus had been closed was denied by E. N. Deitrich, superintendent of schools.

Defiance is reported to have 500 cases of influenza and Union county is known to have 200 reported cases. Although the situation has not become alarming as yet, warnings have been issued by health officials.

People owning automobiles not need apply or send their children, because these cases will be refused.

Presents will be distributed at 11 o'clock Christmas morning in the auditorium of the Elks' home, West Fifth street.

Several schools have been closed. The largest city closing its educational institution was Newcomerstown.

Lima, Marion, Mansfield and Canton are reported fairly free from the disease, although a few cases have been cited. It is believed by Dr. Robbins that in the majority of these cities there are more influenza sufferers than reported, as doctors are failing to report to their county health department all sufferers they attend. Dr. Robbins points out that this was the case in Toledo and Akron and that the disease had gained great headway before the state department was notified, and thus delayed the issuance of special warnings to health commissioners throughout the state.

With 911 students and 20 teachers out of the Coshocton schools due to colds and flu, the board of education at a special meeting yesterday ordered the public schools closed at the close of today's sessions.

This move was recorded as an "advanced Christmas vacation." County Health Commissioner D. M. Criswell of Coshocton county said this afternoon that approximately 450 cases have been diagnosed as influenza in the city of Coshocton and Coshocton county. Forty new cases were reported to him this morning. Three county officials, Sheriff Harold Marquand, Probate Judge L. N. Staal and County Surveyor W. F. Parks, are among those stricken.

Calls for Doctor's Reports.

Dr. Robbins asked International News Service today to broadcast an appeal to all doctors and health authorities to notify his department at Columbus of even the slightest trace of an outbreak of the disease in their territories.

Columbus has not as yet been attacked. There are a few cases there as there are in Dayton and Cincinnati, but reports today do not indicate the influenza area that far south.

With the usual care given a cold, the form of influenza which is gripping so many Ohioans, can be combated, Dr. Robbins declared. The only danger is of complications which will develop if care is not taken, the doctor said. "In practically all deaths reported as due to influenza," Dr. Robbins stated, "our check shows that pneumonia or other complications was actually the cause of the fatality. The form of influenza now gripping Ohioans in itself would only be fatal to elderly persons or weak and undernourished children."

One of the trawlers fishing off the Murmansk coast of Russia under the protection of a British cruiser, landed $5,250 worth of fish.

LIONS TO NOTE AVIATION DAY

Former Airman Will Speak at Dinner Monday.

In keeping with a movement sponsored by the international organization, twenty-fifth anniversary of aviation will be celebrated by the Lions club at a dinner in the grill room of the Traveler's hotel at 5:30 o'clock Monday night. This meeting will take the place of the usual Wednesday session.

Captain J. B. Adams, of Wheeling, formerly of the United States air service, who is now claim agent for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company, will be the guest speaker. Captain Adams, who was stationed at a government flying field in Arkansas as a flying instructor during the World war, has just returned from the aviation show in Chicago. He is an expert in cross-country flying.

Members of the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce will be guests of the club. A short musical program will be presented.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Industrial stocks drifted off to a lower level of prices at the beginning of the shortest session of the week, with most of the market's movements controlled by the professionals on the floor of the big board. The Radio-Victor group were not influenced very much today by the latest merger stories, which still lacked confirmation from the only source of reliable information.

Radio dropped off about 12 points in the first hour, declining to 238—still a respectable distance from the low level of the week. Victor sold around 140, down 10 points from yesterday's peak, but only a point from the close. It is practically settled that these two companies will effect a close working compact, each retaining its identity.

Arthur Cutten, William C. Durant and other members of the "big ten" were quoted in Wall Street today as saying that there would be nothing doing in the stock market until after the first week in January, and this was a cue to the small fry traders to keep out for a while. That accounts for the fact that stock sales in the first half hour today were only about 30 percent as large as in last week's record-breaking, when the turnover in two hours of cyclonic trading was approximately 3,750,000 shares.

G. O. P. Winds Up Campaign Affairs.

For the purpose of winding up affairs in connection with the 1924 campaign, a meeting of the Columbiana County Republican executive committee was held in the courthouse at Lisbon last night.

Thirteen of the 14 members attended. Chairman Elmer E. Walker presided. George Brandt, Lisbon, acted as secretary.

ing into one of the most helpful and inspiring of any yet held during the campaign.

Both had been to Lisbon in the morning where Rodeheaver sang and talked to an assemblage of farmers. He presented Zellers and he responded with a brief address also. Then they returned here in time to take over both sessions at the tabernacle.

The abnormal fog conditions of Wednesday and Thursday doubtless contributed considerably to the condition of the evangelist. On Thursday night his voice was a bit off its usual strident form. But he kept right on and his discourse was so effective that scores came forward to greet him and aver they were starting a new life or re-declaring their to the Author of Christianity.

There will be two services at the tabernacle today as usual. Mr. Sunday will speak tonight.

Reserves Ready to Act.

But should there be occasion for Mr. Sunday resting another day the campaign will not suffer by reason of the richness of the reserves. Rodeheaver has several sermons in his make-up that he has not yet released. And then there is Albert Peterson, the party's advance man. He during summer vacations holds meetings of his own. He fills pulpits in every city to which the evangelist goes. He is a speaker of ability.

Women of the business arm of the city who have been hearing her weekly and the members of her outstanding Bible class would vote with enthusiasm for Miss Florence Kinney to fill out in any interim that may be needed to give Mr. Sunday the needful time for recuperation.

That the revival spirit has sunk its roots in East Liverpool and environs was indicated by the testimonial meeting in the afternoon and the manner in which "Dutch" Zellers and Rodeheaver were listened to both afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Hughes Lauds Sunday.

An outstanding event of last night was the inspiring address of Mrs. Hughes, the wife of Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, on behalf of the campaign executive committee. She epitomized the feeling of the vast throng when she declared that "I love Billy Sunday and will do anything I can for him because of the messages that he has brought to East Liverpool. Anyone who knows God must love him. He is a man of God. You know so. Why, he could have gone away after the first Sunday night when he delivered that unprecedented address which showed any in doubt how to vote for the best welfare of this country."

And then she went on to say how she had been spiritually edified by the sermon on "The Three Groups."

"In all of my nearly 40 years' experience it had never before been my experience to get into a campaign like this. We always hold our own campaigns. We asked the colonel immediately in charge of this district what we should do when we heard that Billy Sunday was coming to town. 'Why close up shop and go right in with the movement unqualifiedly,' was the reply we got. And we have been doing so even though we do stay up until 2 o'clock some nights to catch up some of the needful work at hand."

"I shall not forget the wonderful Bible lessons of Miss Florence Kinney. And Homer Rodeheaver! Well—my daughter in Cincinnati tried to tell me what a singer and all that he is. I feel that she hardly told it all. Well, I love all the members of this evangelistic party, even the boy who has charge of the books, but especially 'Billy.'"

Mrs. Hughes was greeted with such applause after every one of her instructive statements that she finally had to plead: "If you cheer all the time my allotted interm will be gone and I cannot say what really is on my mind."

The third of the trio of assigned Salvation Army officers in this city, Captain Lilly Lund, formerly of Cleveland, was unfortunately unable to be present as she was confined to her room with a slight indisposition.

Miss Frampton Sings.

Mr. Rodeheaver made a graceful gesture that is freighted with rich potentialities by reason of his ambitious rising quality when he had a young woman, Miss Sarah Frampton, sing with him the appeal song, "He Walks With Me." He had in a potted visit discovered her voice capabilities and insisted on her joining with him in the song. He took occasion to tell how at Winona Lake, Ind., during a few weeks each summer young folks, both male and female, are, by training, equipped for that which they are really fitted in life. "I could spend the night telling you of what young girls and boys have accomplished as a result of such training," he said.

And the big crowd present was further edified by the presence of a contingent from the Second Baptist church. After being cheered for their presence there, at Rodeheaver's suggestion, sang "Lift Him Up," by B. B. Beall. Generously encored they responded with a Negro spiritual, "We Couldn't Hear Anybody Pray." Again they drew applause. "I wish I could bottle up some of that bass and keep it up for use when needed," commented Rodeheaver, as he again praised the Negro spirituals as among the highest type of music extant. "Your spirituals combine the rhythm brought by your ancestors from Africa and the culture of the south," he said. "You should ever cultivate this gift of harmony, melody and rhythm which is distinctly yours."

And then he sang for them what he held to be in song the "most beautiful presentation of the world's most tragic story," part of his work carrying the sentiment. "They crucified my Saviour and He never said a mumbling word." He declared: "This interpretation of this event, doubtless given by God, gives in my mind a better conception of His suffering on the cross than I have found in perhaps any spoken sermon."

Zellers Urges Law Enforcement.

Charles "Dutch" Zellers, when presented to the audience, was greeted with applause. He spoke illuminatingly of his work in the Ohio district of which Dayton is the center. He stressed the need of many who had been active in the former Billy Sunday campaign here getting back and enjoying the peace that was once theirs. And he specifically urged better law enforcement in East Liverpool and Columbiana county.

He called on all officers to live up to their oaths and averred that they should have the backing of good citizens. "To fine a bootlegger but $100 is but to invite him to start all over again," he said.

The saddest statement that he had heard since coming back to East Liverpool on the present visit, he indicated, was of a woman who came up to shake hands with Billy Sunday a few nights ago and averred that her husband and son had been illegally selling liquor for a year without being molested. "And you smell liquor in some of the alleys about here. Why, even the sense of smell should guide one to a place where liquor may be found," he observed.

"My notion of the work of an officer hereabouts is to start about West Point and work backwards into town," he observed.

He gave a glowing description of how some liquor is made in his district by telling what a woman confessed as to the recipe she used in making what some of the higher-ups in the district thought was fine bonded whiskey.

"Take 35 pounds of prunes, worms and all, as much sugar, sufficient water, three pounds of yeast and two cans of lye. Soak all. Then run through a distilling apparatus. Color with brown burnt sugar. And to get the oil flake so necessary to dispose the bonded stuff, just use the oil from the worms. You buy wormy prunes because you can get them wholesale at two-cents a pound. And you also get the worm oil, too? See? And the buyers will jump at the sealed liquid labeled 'Sunnybrook, made in Canada.'"

He told how 17 men in his own church had been involved as patrons when raids of certain places had been made and of a church that had a bootlegger as assistant superintendent of a Sunday school "just to try to lead him right."

Hits Buyers of Liquor.

Officers observing persons known to have been or being in the business of liquor dispensation should investigate when they see them deliver packages in public places. "All officers who have taken their oaths seriously should meet bootleggers face to face," he said.

That if he were not a convert of Jesus Christ he declare that doubtless now he would be running a speakeasy in East Liverpool. But he added: "There is not enough money in all East Liverpool to make me go back to the place where 'Dutch' Zellers was when he died to evil ways in the Billy Sunday revival of 16 years ago."

He emphatically declared that many who hold themselves as good citizens in a community, some having their names on church records, are also those who buy liquor in these days. "I should like to see a law passed that would make buyers of liquor as guilty as those who sell it," he shouted, "for when all is said they are really the ones who are the manufacturers of bootleggers."

He declared in conclusion that the heart of America is dry and that people really want law enforcement everywhere. "And if you want this done in this city and Columbiana county you must show that you mean business as citizens in your demands. Officers then will be afraid to be timid or wink at those whom they may know to be violating the law."

"And I want this country for the sake of my boy and your boy and your girl who now is tempted in part's with liquor to live in a world that has been made better by my actions in it. I do not want them to have to undergo the same temptations that were mine. I want them to have the life that the Saviour of men suggested should be lived by all by knowing Him as the Christ and having it to live it more abundantly."

He was given a round of applause as he wound up his address.

Urges Bible in Schools.

Then followed in invitation for those wishing to begin a new life of consecration and initial beginning to come forward. With men and women jammed in the arena in front of the platform the Rev. L. J. Davison, he having also made the invocation of the evening, and the Rev. Dr. Warren O. Hawkins, pastors of the First United Presbyterian and First Methodist churches respectively, invoked the blessings of God upon the departure.

Previously, Rodeheaver emphasized the need for Bible instruction in schools. "Our Catholic brethren have given Protestants a pertinent example of the value of scriptural training for children which we have too long delayed in following. If this can not be done in public schools then assuredly we must undertake something along their line in doing so."

Then he suggested what has been found to be a means which has been worked out successfully in Newport News, Va. "This plan makes Bible study elective in the high school. When it is chosen a priest teaches those of the Catholic persuasion, a rabbi those who are Jews and ministers those who are Protestants. There is no conflict. This elective system could also be carried out in college, still further adding to the biblical knowledge that could be given the youth of the land."

"If we are to gain the memberships that churches have been losing in recent years something like this will have to be done."

Afternoon Meeting.

"You have been in a lot of meetings but not in one quite like this one," observed Rodeheaver at the conclusion of yesterday afternoon's session in the tabernacle during the heavy downpour of rain, which because of his slight indisposition, kept Billy Sunday away.

Ever ready to fill in any breach meeting his chief, Rodeheaver led in the usual song service with Paul Beck and Miss Florence Kinney at the pianos. Then he took the service in hand and directed the listeners in a spirited and fervent testimony service in which many spoke of those for whom they are praying and designated the efforts they have been making to bring them into God's fold.

With pertinent comment, filled to the brim with helpful advice and relating experiences rich in instances of religious transformation that later had caused others to make similar steps, Rodeheaver carried his hearers to a high state of enthusiasm. Then, introducing "Dutch," Zellers, who had accompanied him to a meeting of farmers at Lisbon during the morning where he sang and talked, the former East Liverpool resident and present Anti-Saloon representative, pitched still higher the spiritual tone of the gathering by relating occurrences of his work in the suppression of bootlegging.

Rodeheaver again referred to him as he did in Lisbon as "a bootlegger saved by grace." He spoke for nearly half an hour, holding constantly the interest of the hearers.

"It was not the mere shaking of hands with Billy Sunday that made me a Christian 16 years ago and a Christian worker in Ohio ever since," Zellers said, "but it was the Kirbys and the Kelseys and the Dimits who kept their arms about me, watching until I could stand alone. Why, I stayed up with the Rev. Mr. Kelsey until 2 o'clock one morning."

Zellers Blames Officialdom.

Referring to the time when he was engaged in gambling in this city he, averred that "usually you elected executives that were all right for us." Why in those days I helped tear down more churches than you built altogether."

He said that he never wanted to be a policeman in East Liverpool. "But I knew that I would have enough temptations thereon to make or break me. And I did have them. But I knew them when presented to me."

That the church would have a difficult time under present conditions to hold and keep the persons who have already come forward with the idea of allying themselves with Christian people was stressed by him. "You will have your hands full with the worldliness abounding," he declared.

"If I were an official hereabouts I would land about 40 persons before Saturday night. I would stop at a certain place not far out of this city. And there was a place in which 52 empty bottles of liquor were picked up after a few couples had indulged in a grand march led by a man with his name on a church book. When that kind of condition prevails it is difficult for churchmen to hold people who would so soon desert."

Unhospitably he charged that officialdom knew of such occurrences. "I would close such places or else hang my head in shame," he said.

Admits Life in Prison.

That he had served seven years, four months and twenty-four days behind prison bars was admitted by Zellers. "Society demanded that I be locked up and I was," he commented. "And yet once I carried on with other men in work during a reform administration here it was known, of course, but the persons who should have done so did not carry out that which they had been charged and were supposed to do."

He told how that he had been in 8,200 raids since leaving East Liverpool. "Perhaps investigations would be the better word. And yet do you know that our salaries have on occasions been prorated by lack of funds as the result of church people failing to contribute the necessary to carry on. Where would you be if we had quit?"

He spoke of the danger incident to much of the work. "But if I go you will know I was engaged in work to which I was devoted."

He charged that every police official in Ohio, no matter in what city located, knows where liquor may be found in their respective communities. "The lowest fellow on God's green earth is the man who patronizes a bootlegger," he shouted. "You can trust a bootlegger, but I would not sleep with the buyer who patronizes him."

He gave some realistic close-ups of raids in some so-called high places in his district. "In some of these they get so drunk on the ground floor that they do not know whose wife they are with on the top floor," he said. He described the rotten ingredients of much of the drink utilized while the buyers think they are getting "High and Dry," their name for Scotch whiskey.

"And some of these higher-up men are defended by constitutional lawyers who, sitting in church, shout 'Amen' at intervals during sermons," he disclosed. "They defend just plain, ordinary law violators, and who, when they die, are placed in heaven by the newspapers."

Tells of Raid Experience.

He affirmed that the rank and file of men are hungry for God. "But they will not be moved except by honest personal work," he pointed out. "They will not come to the Lord when importuned by persons who in church are known to permit even indirectly liquor in some lodge or club room."

"The church in East Liverpool will be deadlier than a doornail six weeks after the close of this meeting unless there is some sort of an organization affected to hold the revival converts and continue to procure others."

"And do not forget that any time that the liquor crowd says I am all right then I have become useless to the church and to God."

He concluded with a concrete instance of the results of one of his raids:

"We are going to lock you up and throw away the key," I shouted to a foreigner I found making booze in the lavatory of his house. His wife understanding me, seized a gun. It was discharged as I wrest it from her hand."

Divining her purpose I at the same time yelled to her "God will never forgive you if you suicide."

"We locked up her husband. Later we released him. I getting him a position. He went back to his wife and two children."

Cites Work of Anti-Saloon League.

One day he came to me and said that he had saved $24. He asked me to see if I could arrange for him to buy a house. I did. He paid $300 down on a $2,700 home. He pays $24 a month on it.

"Another day later his wife came to me and insisted that I come and have dinner with them. I finally agreed, taking a friend along. We found their home cozy, clean and the family getting along while obeying the law and living like good citizens."

"As I was leaving the mother came to me and said, 'We have decided we should join a church. We want you to recommend one.' I looked up the street and saw the belfry of one back of some trees. There it is," I pointed. "I did not know what denomination it was. It turned out to be a Baptist. I saw the pastor. The following Sunday the former bootlegger, his wife and two children joined that church."

"His wife, radiantly happy, came to me again and said: 'You arrest my man for making bad liquor. You put him in jail. You get him out. You get him a home. You help us into church. And all now so very happy.' That is just one illustration of the many that I could relate to you of what the Anti-Saloon league is doing in helping to do away with evil."

The fact that the royal physicians this morning noted no increase in exhaustion was regarded as an especially good sign. It is generally believed that so long as the king continues to maintain his strength, his chances of ultimate recovery will remain good.

Palace officials told International News Service they regarded the morning bulletin as favorable. They said they believed it justified the hope expressed last night that the release late Friday was only one of the temporary fluctuations that must be expected.

"The king's sleep proved beneficial," said one palace attendant, "probably contributed to maintenance of the king's strength."

As the result of last night's disquieting bulletin hundreds of persons flocked to the palace early this morning to await the medical bulletin. They stood for hours in a bitterly cold wind until the bulletin was posted.

MAN ARRESTED ON TWO CHARGES

William Reed, arrested in West Ninth street by Captain Conley yesterday afternoon, was turned over to the Carroll county sheriff last night to answer a charge of removing stolen property. Reed is alleged to have brought household furnishings, bought in Alliance, from Carrollton to East Liverpool last August.

When Reed is released by Carroll county authorities, he will face a liquor charge in East Liverpool, police said. Police claim that about four and one-half pints of whisky and a quantity of beer were found at his home.

J. E. Dixon and Maud Solomon, who are alleged to have been the occupants of an apartment above the room of Reed, were arrested upon charges of disorderly conduct. They were fined $10 and costs each.

NEASE WINNER IN DAMAGE SUIT

A verdict for the defense was returned by a jury before Judge C. L. Newcomer, Bryan, in common pleas court at Lisbon yesterday afternoon in the $10,068 damage action brought by W. H. Fairman, Wellsville, against Claude Nease, Newell tile manufacturer, for personal injuries and damages growing out of an automobile accident on the East Liverpool-Newell bridge several months ago.

An award of $295 was given Mark Brewster, Lisbon, passenger in the Fairman car, by a jury Thursday. Brewster sued for $535. Attorney J. H. Brooks represented Nease, while Attorney W. A. O'Grady, Wellsville, was counsel for Fairman.

Nab Heldman

threatened to expose her to her husband unless she continued to submit to him.

After police had been searching for the "phantom murderer" who killed Fearn, for a week, Heldman found the letter, he says, confronted his wife with it, and she confessed. Heldman admits that he berated her as they made the trip to Canton from Lorain in his automobile.

Mrs. Fearn revealed today that she had known Mrs. Heldman when the later was Margaret Horner, working in a Canton office. The girl frequently was present at dancing parties which she and her husband attended, she related.

Although she saw the "gun girl" on the front porch of her home, the night Fearn was killed she did not recognize her as the former Margaret Horner, Mrs. Fearn said. The young woman had grown much thinner, she stated.

Sheriff Gibson is convinced that Mrs. Heldman committed suicide. The bullet which was fired into her body came from a pistol held beneath the coat, he points out.

Authorities are also investigating a report that Fearn and Mrs. Heldman met at the Bond hotel in Akron Tuesday night before the murder. Mrs. Fearn cannot account for her husband's whereabouts that night, according to reports. Mrs. Heldman is known to have been at the hotel Wednesday night, the night before the murder.

Mrs. Heldman's body was to be returned today to DuBois, Pa., her birthplace and the home of her mother.

Launch Preventive Drive Against "Flu"

American Sheet & Tin Plate Plant Distributes Medicinal Compound; Commissioner Tarr Urges Observance of Health Rules.

WELLSVILLE, O., Dec. 15.—While the influenza epidemic reported in other sections of the country has not touched Wellsville, as indicated in announcements by Health Commissioner M. C. Tarr, physicians, school authorities and industrial operators have, nevertheless, instituted a preventive campaign.

Through arrangement by Bert J. Ross, manager of the American Sheet and Tin Plate plant, employees of the mill yesterday and today were supplied with a medicinal compound for mouth, nose and throat. The medicine was compounded in the mill hospital and is given to each employee who takes a bottle to the hospital.

The compound, an iodine salt solution, was tried successfully once before. Until the present time, illness among mill forces has not been extraordinary.

As far as school authorities have been able to determine, such absences as have been reported have been attributed to common ailments other than influenza. Whooping cough and chickenpox among pupils of the primary grades, however, have been responsible for a decrease in the attendance average in the last several weeks.

Dr. Tarr reports nothing unusual in the city's health rating. He advises citizens, however, to observe strict health rules.

BAYNHAM URGES JOBS FOR JAILED

George Baynham, St. Clairsville, state prohibition inspector who has visited Wellsville and vicinity on several occasions, has submitted a recommendation to Belmont county commissioners that prohibition law violators be placed at work on the roads with a two-fold object:—To curb liquor traffic and to lower taxes.

Inspector Baynham has advised the commissioners that the county could save $50,000 annually in road construction wages, if thirty prisoners, half the average number confined in the county jail each month, were put to work on the roads. Should the suggestion be adopted, the commissioners said stone quarries would be opened and the prisoners set to the task of getting out the material for the 30 miles of new highways to be constructed next year.

Jail records show that Inspector Baynham and his aids are prosecuting an average of 50 alleged prohibition law violators each month in this county, half of whom enter guilty pleas.

The most notable advance in driving convenience since the self-starter

The Superior Whippet is the first car to offer the new "Finger-Tip Control"—a single button conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, which controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This ingenious device does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button, usually located in a somewhat inaccessible position, and obviates a change from the comfortable driving position to reach the light switch on the dash.

While everyone will welcome this new feature, it will appeal particularly to women drivers. Its simple operation is clearly explained by the illustrations above.

Four High Cage Squads Work Out With Opening Tilt Week Away

Various Combinations Tried by Coach Hurst

McNutt-Feit-Dyke-Witherow-McConville Quint Possible Starter Against Rochester Here Next Friday.

Squad of 23 promising looking leather slingers, residue of the 80 who originally reported to Coach Joe Hurst at the beginning of high school basketball workouts, will remain as the squad begins drills Monday for the opening game of the campaign Friday night with Rochester.

Hurst has divided the lot into four squads and last night gave them a series of good scrimmages.

Out of this array of talent will be selected the varsity and reserve teams.

Forwards—Feit, McNutt, Clyde Clark, Bowen, Lindell, Small, Lane and Pearson.

Centers—Dyke, McCoy, Chetwyn, Schneller, Don Burlick.

Guards—Witherow, Skidmore, Greenwood, McConville, Woolley, Merle Smith, Dalrymple, Crawford, Sam Brown.

In practice sessions the four squads line up as follows:

1. McNutt and Feit, forwards; Dyke, center; Witherow and McConville, guards.

2. Lindell and Small, forwards; Chetwyn, center; Skidmore and Greenwood, guards.

3. Brown and Pearson, forwards; McCoy, center; Crawford and Dalrymple, guards.

4. Clark and Lane, forwards; Burlick, center; Mense and Woolley, guards.

Out of these various combinations, the local case manager is confident he will be able to assemble a couple of good squads.

Witherow and Feit, forwards, last year, are the only hold-overs from the 1927-28 varsity outfit. From all indications it is possible that Witherow will be shifted to a running guard position where he can figure in all angles of play. McConville probably will start as back with Dyke, McNutt and Feit, all good scorers, in the front lines.

Of course, this is all tentative. A definite lineup will not be announced by Hurst until he trots 'em out on the floor next Friday night.

Mid-West Bids For National Cage Honors

Pittsburgh and Penn Beaten by Northwestern and Ohio.

By Gene Hoffman.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—That eastern aspirants for the national basketball title this season will have to reckon with several mid-western fives was more apparent than ever today following the second successive defeats of both Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania.

The Panthers, still smarting under the lacing dish out by Butler at Indianapolis Thursday night, exposed the other check to Northwestern university sharpshooters at Evanston last night only to emerge on the small end of a 30-24 count.

Meanwhile, over at Columbus, Ohio, Pennsylvania was taking it on the chin from Ohio State to the tune of 29 to 23. The Quakers had dropped the first game of their western invasion the night before to University of Indiana at Bloomington.

This season's western invasion of these two powerful eastern quintets is in marked contrast to that of last season when they bowled over everything in their paths. Until stopped by the little Butler five last Thursday night, Pitt had played 29 games without a defeat.

Pennsylvania's record was almost as impressive. The Quakers not only laid claim to the inter-collegiate championship last season, but rate three All-American stars in their present lineup.

The skill with which these powerful eastern fives have been vanquished by "Big Ten" teams forecasts a bitter fight when the western conference championship race swings into action soon after the first of the year. Incidentally, some of the best basketball ever seen on mid-western courts should be in order.

Plan Sunday School Cage League Here

Reorganization Meeting in Y. M. C. A. Monday Night.

Reorganization of the Sunday school basketball league will take place at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock next Monday night. Call for the session was issued today by Frank Robinson, president of the league.

Thirteen teams have already made application for places in the league. They represent the following churches: St. Johns Lutheran, First Baptist, First Methodist Episcopal, Orchard Grove, Methodist Episcopal, First Christian, First Methodist Protestant, St. Stephens Episcopal, First Presbyterian, First United Presbyterian, Emanuel Presbyterian, Chester Methodist Episcopal and Chester Christian church.

These teams and all others interested in the proposed league are urged to send representatives to Monday night's meeting.

Punch, Speed Are Added to Cotham Iceers

Americans Looking Good After Thorough Overhauling.

THE star-spangled hockey team known as the New York Americans underwent a thorough overhauling prior to the opening of the current season, and the changes made are already showing results in the games which are now history.

The management apparently decided to overwork the money bar and in other respects see what could be accomplished in the way of building up a machine which would be a credit to the red, white and blue, under which they do their puck pushing.

Manager Tommy Gorman took his little market basket and went shopping in the hockey marts, and from early showings what he came home with is going to be plenty to make the Americans a pretty hot gang during the whole winter season.

After returning to the home office from his shopping trip, Gorman spread out his purchases and found that he had three new wingmen and all of them were mighty capable performers on the ice. "Punch" Broadbent, who came from Ottawa on a cash deal, looked like a good bet to have around when it came to the bolstering up process. Johnny Shepard, who was also purchased for cash, but from Detroit, was another desirable purchase and then, to make it a cinch that the Americans would have plenty of good wing material, Gorman got "Rabbit" McVeigh from the Chicago Black Hawks on a trade which sent Alex McKinnon to the Windy City six.

In the trio of wingmen secured Johnny Shepard is one of the outstanding youngsters of the game and a fellow who has not yet reached the peak of his hockey career. Shepard is full of vigor and fight, and last year, with the Cougars, Johnny was everywhere on the ice whenever he was in the game. During a game, a good mallet wielder, Shepard scored 20 points with Detroit and the American fans are expecting him to bend the netting of their opponents' cages a good many times during the present season.

Broadbent may have lost some of his famous speed, but he is still a tricky and a deceptive player and can post himself in unguarded corners to receive passes. Once in possession of the puck, this veteran can make life miserable for any goalie in the big league, and while he may not be so spectacular as some of the other players, he is a good, consistent ground gainer and dangerous at all times.

The third of this trio, McVeigh, is noted for his speed. "The Rabbit" is one of the fastest skaters working on the circuit today, and Gorman, taking advantage of this speed, plans to use McVeigh as a sort of utility player and shoot him into the battle whenever a burst of speed may mean a tally. In order to accomplish this with the greatest efficiency, McVeigh spent considerable time before the start of the season in acquainting himself with the play of each of the Americans, but he, like Broadbent, has been playing for some time, and he is not slow in picking up the various styles of play.

In addition Gorman has Babe Dye, another anchor player like Broadbent, who is likely to come to life at unexpected moments and sizzle the puck down the ice with force enough to burn the pads on the goal minder. Jesse Spring was recalled from Niagara Falls to help out the Americans, and altogether Manager Tommy seems to have enough material of the colorful type, plus ability, to win a goodly portion of his games this year.

Of last year's Americans only five returned to the dock. These are Jackie Forbes, Billy Burch, Normie Himes, Leo Reize and Lionel Conacher, who will captain the team.

So the red, white and blue jersey wearers are set for a big season and if they fall by the wayside it isn't for lack of good timber. It looks like a winning combination.

to blending a pair of golf socks with a shirt and necktie he can give Walter a handicap and finish far ahead in the Ensemble tournament.

Among the sensational low scores of 1928, Farrell's 63 in the La Gorce Open at Miami last winter still stands as a notable achievement. That mark was registered under pressure as Johnny started the final round with the knowledge that "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank, of New York, had carded a smashing 32 for the first nine.

"Wee Bobby" looked like a sure winner in the event which carried a first prize of about six thousand simoleons, but Johnny came along to snatch the rich award from the little Scot.

Hagen has long been noted for playing his best game under pressure and has probably won more matches when he seemed to be hopelessly outclassed than any other golfer who is battling the putts-percha pills over the greensward today.

On the present tour the roving golfers will hook up with local talent in many of their appearances, but they will undoubtedly clash with each other at times and in these instances they both will always be trying their best to win.

Following the final match at St. Louis, Farrell and Hagen headed West on a tour which will take them to the Pacific Coast and back again in time to play the citrous belt in Florida during the winter season in the South.

Both of these fellows are colorful personalities. Excellent golfers, they are sure to give the public a run for its money no matter where they appear. Farrell, in addition to being one of the best shots in the country, is noted as being the best-dressed golfer who treads the links. He is not as rugged in build as Hagen, but he has a way of putting a wealth of power back of his drives and when it comes

Ten Games On Girls' Schedule

Miss Miller's Sextet to Open Against Alumni.

BEING compelled to weld together a squad from a remarkably scant array of material, considering the possibilities, Miss Miller, girls' basketball coach at the high school, is persevering in her determination, despite discouraging setbacks in the last year or so, to improve the caliber of Blue and White girls' teams.

In the last couple of years the squad has not been as successful as it might have been, in spite of splendid efforts by both coach and team, but past defeats and discouragements have been consigned to the limbo of the forgotten as Miss Miller and her 1928-29 girls busy themselves in preparations for a 10 game assignment.

A squad of approximately 26 has been working out under Miss Miller's supervision. The number of players is being reduced gradually and next week, when the sextet begins work for the Alumni game on Saturday, Dec. 22, the following girls probably will await the call for active duty:

Catherine Steffen, Gertrude Grumet, Eleanor Huss, Verna Cochrane, Eliza Townley, Sarah Allison, Martha Williams, Lois Cunningham, Kathryn Moon, June Johnson and Katharine Mason.

Miss Steffen is captain. She and Miss Huss are the only regulars from last year's team and so, forming a new six looms as a rather difficult task.

The schedule, as announced for the girls' team, follows:

Dec. 22—Alumni.
Jan. 4—Salem.
Jan. 18—Steuenville here.
Jan. 26—Newell here.
Feb. 8—At Wellsville.
Feb. 9—At Steuenville.

Stubber Cage Outlook Shows Improvement

Cartledge Combine Will Have More Speed This Year.

STEUENVILLE, O., Dec. 15.—Steuenville high's boy basketball team will clash with 14 opponents this coming season and will take part in the annual Class A tournament.

The card also calls for the red and black lads to go into battle 11 times as preliminaries to the main shows put on by the quint.

Eight at Home.

Eight of the 14 times that the Stubbers swing into action will be at home with the other six dates abroad. On five of the six trips the girls' sextet will travel to take part in a double engagement.

Three new foes will be met by the boys during the season. Salem, Denison and Sebring are the strangers with which the Stubbs will become acquainted this year. Salem girls will be met by the local sextet and also Newell and Hopedale.

The curtain raiser is booked for December 28 with Sebring boys forming the attraction at the Grant school gymnasium. Harding and Grant teams will clash in the preliminary in the first of a two-game series for the city championship.

Final Away.

The final game will be played away from home, the boys going to Denison February 22. This will give the Stubbs five days in which to tune up for the Eastern Ohio Class A tourney scheduled for March 1 and 2.

Prospects of the Cartledge boys and girls going through this program with a majority of the games being won are bright. The girls' team promises to rank as good as the one last season, while the boys in their practice sessions show signs of being the best team the local school has had in the past three years.

The team as it shapes up at present will be better and have more range than that of last year. Bell and Lee add the range, while Levan, Lodee and Topsis are better than in 1927. The schedule is as follows:

Dec. 28—Sebring (boys only).
Jan. 4—Bellaire.
Jan. 5—Salem (away).
Jan. 11—Martins Ferry.
Jan. 18—East Liverpool.
Jan. 19—Toronto (away).
Jan. 25—Westinghouse of Pittsburg.

Hopedale Girls.
Jan. 26—Denison (boys only).
Feb. 1—Harding vs. Grant.
Feb. 1—Martins Ferry (away).
Feb. 2—Waynesburg (boys only).
Feb. 2—Newell girls.

Paolino Won't Have to Worry About Christmas Gift Kopeks

Tackles Renault in Cali. Colombia, Dec. 24 and May Yet Get Chance For Title.

PAOLINO UZUDUN, the Basque sapping whittier, who is being hailed by a good many people as the fellow who is going to finish the current heavyweight elimination tournament with a chance for a shot at the crown, has looked plenty of battles, so that he should not have to worry about where the coin for his Christmas shopping is coming from.

Uzudun will spend Christmas in Cali, Colombia, as he is billed to rough it with Jack Renault in that port on the evening of Dec. 24. But spending Christmas in Cali is not going to be hard on the Basque, because his pockets will be lined with kopeks, and, unless the dope is all upset somewhere along the line of scrimmage, he still has that crack at the crown ahead of him.

The Christmas Eve festivities between Renault and Paolino will be the feature attraction of the ring show to be staged in honor of the opening of the Pan American Olympiad at Cali. Renault doesn't seem as a tough customer for the rugged Uzudun, and in the Basque's record it will undoubtedly be scratched up as just another battle.

While still lacking a bit of being a finished product so far as boxing is concerned, Uzudun has made great strides toward ring greatness since he landed here from Spain. His first shots proved him to be a wildly swinging glove pusher with powerful strength back of his windmill fists. Gradually he absorbed some of the advice which his handlers were trying to wheedle into him and in later appearances the results were apparent. While he still swung wildly at times, there were other times when he would step in and show a little class. He wasn't afraid and he could soak up punishment like a hot sun soaks up a mud puddle. That won him a lot of friends among the fans.

Then Uzudun, sensing million-dollar gates and surrounded by a mob of managers he had acquired along the route to fame, started to hold out for big purses. He wanted money and he wanted it in big stacks. He had to be fed and there was a horde of hangers-on who were using him as a meal ticket. For a time this yearning for big money threatened to sidetrack him but someone must have caught a bug in his cauliflower ear because he is now willing to mix it without having the Bank of England dumped in his lap.

Tex Rickard, always seeking color and realizing the international aspect of Uzudun as a contender, feels that the Spanish heavyweight must be given consideration in his search for a new champion to succeed the retired Gene Tunney.

Paolino has fought plenty around New York and has shown quite a lot of stuff despite the fact that he failed to distinguish himself in his two meetings with Tom Heeney, the Solid Rock from Down Under, who failed in his efforts against Tunney in what was later discovered to be Gene's last appearance—and last in this case means nothing but final.

There is still talk of Dempsey coming back to the wars and it is rumored in fighting circles that Uzudun will be Jack's opponent and that the bout is already on the books for sometime near the middle of June. That's the chatter and a lot of the boys feel as if it is the dope on the heavyweight situation. There are others who feel that Dempsey will never return to the ring and that Mr. Rickard is using the conversation merely as a baithook. Your own personal guess on the situation is probably as good as the next fellow's.

Meanwhile there is sure to be some more eliminating around New York, and there is likely to be some meles staged where in one evening two leading contenders—or so-called contenders—will be automatically eliminated.

When the dust of early Spring is kicked up, however, it is pretty safe to say that Paolino Uzudun, the wood chopper, will be among those present.

Foutts Lines Up Mitt Card For Thursday

Unglo-Stan in Eight Rounds; Edwards-Mitchell go Six.

With the arrangements of a four-round preliminary between "Polson" Fizzone, Wellsville, 120, and Tony Lee, the Detrolter, who put on a whacking scrap several weeks ago, Matchmaker Ray Foutts has definitely lined up his complete card for his mitt program Thursday night of next week.

DAPHNE

Thrilling story of love of two girls for the same man

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

"You don't know what it has meant to me," he heard himself saying, and stopped, horrified at the sound of his own voice.

The spell that had helped them, marionettes in a mad whirl of gaiety all evening, suddenly snapped. Realities came rushing back. She made a quick, frightened movement toward the door.

He held out his hand to say goodbye, and instead, he whispered, "Kiss me, Daphne, just once—"

She backed against the door, really frightened now, not knowing what to say. "I can't—I can't—" she mumbled, feeling frantically for her keys.

Just as she knew he would, he brushed her resistance aside and took her forcibly, and none too gently in his arms. It was no use to struggle, he held her as she had never been held before.

"Oh please don't!" she begged, "Ralph—"

"Ralph!" And he forced her head back, and kissed her, one long, drawn out kiss. She no longer resisted, it seemed inevitable, and inexplicably tragic.

CHAPTER 40.

He plunged down the stairs with her voice still pounding in his ears. "Oh Allan, Allan—why did you?"

The taxi had long since gone. Street cars whizzed past him but he did not think of boarding one. To keep moving, that was what he wanted, not to think too much...

He thought he was going home, but instead, he found himself headed toward the office. As he turned up California street he saw the clock on old St. Mary's and read the carved inscription, "Son, observe the time, and flee from evil."

He laughed out loud. He had never been in an office building so late at night. How dead and cold it was, with even the chair women gone, and the paved halls still wet from their mops. It was good to get into the office, to flood the place with light, and feel the good, thick carpet under his feet.

He moved about restlessly. Why had he come? To-morrow with its trouble, would be here soon enough. He went to his desk, unlocked a drawer. Locked it again, quickly. Tomorrow... wait till tomorrow...

He shut his eyes, trying to shut out the memories of the day. He thought of old Mr. Greely, slumped in his chair. He might be incapacitated for days. Weeks perhaps... poor devil... poor Ralph...

The overwhelming anger that had consumed him all day had burned itself out. He thought once of going to Ralph, of talking to him now. He half rose from the chair. But that was absurd. Tomorrow would be time enough. He thought of Daphne once more... of Daphne who would never forgive him, because she would never understand... He covered his face with his hands. "I've made a mess of everything," he groaned. "Everything! What'll she think?" It seemed to him suddenly, that he was going crazy, that if he didn't tell her, he couldn't live.

He snatched a piece of paper and began to write, furiously at first, almost illegibly. She throbbed at his temples ceased, his whole tortured being relaxed. He was telling it all to her... everything... she would never get the letter, but what of that?

It was daylight when he had finished. He looked at the little pile of scribbled sheets. He ought to destroy them at once. He pecked them up, made a move as if to tear them, but he couldn't do it... not quite yet. Besides, they would be safe enough there in the tin box, in the drawer with the other things. Later, he would destroy them. He put the letter into a blank envelope and sealed it. "Confession is good of the soul," he said grimly. He didn't expect her to forgive him. Nobody could do that. "I'm the perfect failure! The poor fish who wants to do the decent thing, and knows what it is—and then is too weak to do it. Well—there's nothing like facing the facts."

He placed the sealed envelope with the other things in the box, locked it carefully, and left.

Daphne, who had not slept, reached the office earlier than usual, but early as she was, Mr. Sanderson and Mr. McMurtrie were there before her, holding a conference in Mr. Greely's private office. They closed the communicating door when she came in.

"Have you heard from Mr. Greely? Is he better this morning?" she asked Mrs. Hobbs, the telephone operator.

Mrs. Hobbs, who was usually a bubbling spring of information, overflowing and running over, readjusted her headpiece and considered. "I believe they did have him on the wire, honey, and he was all right. You were still here when he was taken sick, weren't you?"

"Yes, and Mr. Winters from McKevitt's office was here too. We took him home."

"You did, honey? Well, how did he look, real bad?"

It was obviously Mrs. Hobbs' morning for receiving, not giving information.

Miss Yardley was even less communicative. "I don't know a thing about it, I'm sure," she said, "except that he is pretty well this morning. And if I were you I wouldn't bother Mr. McMurtrie or Mr. Sanderson. I am sure they have their hands full with other things."

Towards noon Ralph McKevitt, hat pulled over his eyes, overcoat collar upturned, strode through the outer office, and was closeted for hours with McMurtrie and Sanderson. There was a restlessness in the office, a shifting of feet, a curious air of expectancy. Everybody seemed to know what was happening. Everybody but Daphne.

"Ralph!" she called timidly when he came out of the private office at last. She even held out her hand, as if to stop him, but if he saw or heard her he gave no sign. He walked right by, his handsome face flushed and drawn, eyes straight ahead. She did not have the courage to follow, or call him again. She felt guilty... the memory of that excited, half-mad dancing... of Allan Winters' kiss... "I must have been crazy!" she thought, for the hundredth time.

The long afternoon wore on. She tried to concentrate on her work, struggled to keep her mind on the contract she was copying. Inexplicably, clumsily, her fingers found the meaningless words, but she wasn't really there at the desk at all. She was back in Mr. Greely's office, supporting his heavy head against her shoulders... waiting... waiting for the doctor to come.

She was in the high, bleak hall in his house watching them lead him upstairs, seeing those three pairs of feet disappear around the bend of the stairway, the taxi driver's yellowish ones, the meek black ones that belonged to the butler, old Mr. Greely's congress boots in the center, so heavy, stumbling on every step, weighed down with his age and weakness...

And then she was back in the roadhouse, laughing and eating and dancing... Dancing... while Mr. Greely lay, perhaps at death's door... And they were on the narrow porch at Mrs. Hinckle's where so many times Ralph, whom she loved and would always love, no matter if he never spoke to her again, had lightly, gently, kissed her good-night...

"When he knew we love each other, and he's supposed to be Ralph's friend, how could he?" she asked herself, over and over again.

Around and around her thoughts went, in meaningless circles, stopping and starting, beginning again, around and around like a merry-go-round.

It was the office boy who told her, just as she was going home. He was a serious young man, with large, steely eyes, and dark rimmed glasses, and an eager, nervous way of speaking.

"Oh Miss Haines, I have a note a lady left for you. I hope it wasn't important. I was so busy today in all the excitement I forgot to give it to you."

"What was the excitement?" she asked idly.

"Why didn't you hear?" He leaned toward her, and said in his loud, clear voice, with the little nervous rushes, "Ralph Iverson McKevitt almost went under today, that's all. The market dropped and when he went to cover his margin he found that collateral he thought he had, had been sold, and twenty thousand drawn out of the bank without his knowledge. He'd have been sunk all right if it hadn't been for Mr. Geely coming through. McMurtrie and Sanderson wouldn't. Lucky for him that the old man didn't die, I say."

With his spectacled eyes on her, she couldn't quite realize the enormity of what he was saying. She fingered the note in her hands.

"He—he's safe? He's all right?"

The band plans to give a series of open air concerts this summer. Headquarters have been established in the old council chamber at the city hall, where practice sessions are held every Monday night.

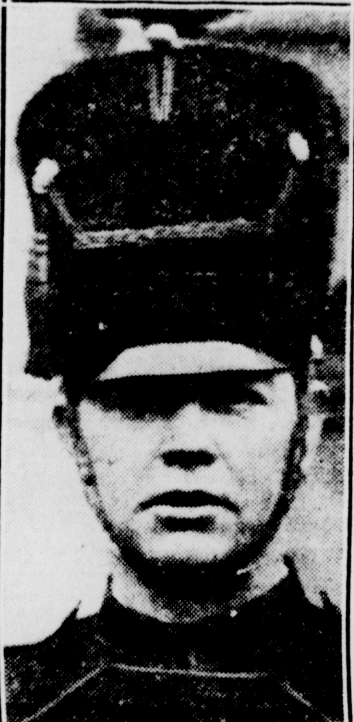

Personnel of Band.
